The following is an extract from a priwate letter written by a gentleman intimately connected with the Expedition their families, of the same color, and not commanded by Gen. Banks :

say that nobody expected us here. Not a soul looked for us, and bardly a man on board suspected our destination until the flag ship was steaming up the Mississippi. A bundred years could not have given us a finer voyage. All the indications of our campaign are as auspicious as our voyage. We arrived here on Sunday evening, and esiled for Baton Rouge, the first Rebel

"New Orleans, Dec. 18, 1862" 300,000 LIVES LOST!

It is thought there are about 300,000 Slaveholders engaged in the War to make a new Nation whose "corner stone" (se announced by Vice President Stephens,) shall be Human Slavery.

It is also estimated, that, taking both eides together, 300,000 men have died of wounds and disease arising from war, or flashing, as at Hartsville. That was Mor- less a success. Of these 300,000 victims of Slave ambition, probably 100,000 were husbands and fathers, in the prime of their days. This would leave 100,000 new-made widows, and perhaps Half a Million Orphans, victims of the demon Oppression!

This despotic Power still persists in its mad strife to continue the flow of blood, and to make more Widows and Orphans. Heartless and relentless, with one band at compels the slave to toil for its subsistence, and with the other would bow Freemen to its imperious behests.

Now let it be asked, are the pride and arrogance of these 300,000 slave-holding Rebels more valuable than the lives, happiness and liberties of 30 000,000 immortal human beings? Are 300 000 Tyrants to rule 26,000,000 Freemen? Shall more aids.
